Sun Clears Way For Area Planting

Site Work Begins On Bowling Alley At K of C Building

Construction work is beginning on the enlarged Knights of Columbus bowling alley in West Cameron as workmen are preparing the present building for addition of the new wing.

Officials said that work would begin on the foundation when clear weather permits before addition of the steel wing for the eight alleys.

Bowling will continue during that phase of construction.

Completion of the new building will take about a week to 10 days after the foundation is poured.

The Knights of Columbus alleys will double the number of alleys to eight and will add automatic pensetters.

Officials pointed out there would be a capacity for many new league teams. Sixteen teams are now bowling.

Weather conditions have held up construction on the foundation upto this week though a bulldozer has leveled the site for the new building.

The new alleys will be set up running north - south instead of east - west as they are now. Four new alleys will be added and the present four alleys will be used in the new building.

The new wing will be added to the north side of the building.

Committee Meets...

Precinct Time Set

The Milam County Democratic Committee has set party precinct meeting times for May 7, the day of the Democratic primary, according to Max McClaren Committee chairman.

Meeting time for rural precincts was set 2:30 p.m. May 7 while meeting time for precincts in incorporated towns Cameron, Rockdale and Thorndale was set at 7:30 p.m. May 7, McClaren told The Herald.

He said election managers were named for the primary subject to approval of the respective committee representatives of the 39 county precincts.

Committee members instructed E. A. Camp, Rockdale attorney and a committee member, to draw up resolutions to four committeemen who have died since 1958.

The resolution would commemorate George Leath, W. F. Sharp, Dave Link and John Matyastik, who served as much as 30 years each as members of the Democratic committee, McClaren said.

Inclement weather held attendance of the committee to about 10 members at the recent meeting, he pointed out.

Names of the election managers would be available next week, McClaren said, after committeemen have approved the recommendations made in the county meeting.

Soil Conditions Improving For Earlier Crops

County farmers were preparing to plant spring crops of maize and corn this week as weather cleared for the first time in weeks.

County Agent J. D. Moore said that farmers feared only another rain that might delay planting seven to 10 days.

But some farmers were putting their corn crops in the ground this week while most were preparing to start planting after a few more days of sunshine.

Moore said that moisture is "full wet" and some dry weather would clear the way for ideal planting and early growing conditions.

Maize crops are due to be planted first, followed by corn and then cotton by the first week in April, Moore noted.

The soil temperature was at 46 degrees Wednesday morning Moore continued, but sunshine would bring the ground temperature up fast for good planting conditions.

Upland ground was drying faster and bottomland were still wet due to heavier soil that holds moisture longer.

In the produce line, Moore said that cantaloupes were due to be planted now for their short growing season and a normal early June harvest.

V. L. "Buck" Angell, Waco highway, said that planting would begin generally about Monday with dry weather and warmer soil temperatures.

All planting schedules were dependent upon clear weather for the next two weeks, Angell said.

Moore said that pasture grazing was not good right now, but a week of sunshine would cause grass and clover to grow to improve the cattle grazing picture.

Moore said that hay supplies are low and cattlemen hope to get their animals on pasture grazing as soon as possible.

Ol' 100 With F. M. L.

Spring is only four days away by the calendar and too long getting here by most people's recollection.

Watching the sun shine down again this Wednesday (like it did last Wednesday) set us to imagining about the reactions various people would have to the new season's arrival. Briefly we thought:

Student: "Only two more months of school."

100 - 100 - 100

Mostly it means growing things in the field and garden, for pay or for pleasure. It means a time to renew our optimism once more, just like nature renews her vigor, bringing the dormant to life without fail.

It looks like spring will mean a renewal at some homes and businesses in the Cameron area this year with a number of homes to undergo painting or remodeling as well as business decoration and improvement.

The Herald again hopes to run an honor roll of businesses and home owners repainting or remodeling around the house or shop this spring.

It's all part of a new season that is more a new year than the first of January. Wonder why the year doesn't begin with spring?

Improvements Set Throughout City

Sanding of the courthouse was completed and county officials were calling for bids to paint and trim the exterior woodwork of the structure. Bids would be opened 10 a. m. April 4.

Sanding work continued over the weekend as the Citizens National Bank and the offices of Emory B. Camp were sanded.

Improvements were underway at New Cameron Drug, partially burned out of its former location at 200 South Houston, which moved next door. Owner Earl Curtis said the fountain and lunch area would be reopened in about 10 days.

A number of improvements were underway on homes and businesses throughout the city. The Herald invites owners of business and homes to call in about their remodeling and improvements.

The courthouse took on a new look following completion of the sanding project. Bids call for a complete repainting of outside wood and fixtures to finish the first exterior redecoration of the structure in 21 years.

Meanwhile, paving work was scheduled for West Main St., four blocks on North Crockett and part of Sixth Street. City officials scheduled the work several weeks ago, but paving was delayed by recent rains.

Interior improvements are underway at St. Monica's Catholic Church.

And the First Presbyterian Church is continuing interior decoration with new sanctuary carpeting, painting, refinished fixpenting, painting, refinishing fixtures and other improvements.

And last week workmen received an okay to begin dismantling the present First Baptist Church prior to constructing a new colonial building.

Hospital Seeking Additional Funds

A drive to raise funds for a new Newton Memorial Hospital is in the planning stages, an informed source told The Herald this week.

The Newton Memorial Hospital recently received a $160,000 federal grant through the Hill-Burton Committee for construction of a new hospital building and new equipment.

The present Newton Memerial Hospital, a non - profit hospital, was built in 1942 as a memorial to a Cameron doctor and surgeon, Dr. W. R. Newton, Sr., who died in 1938.

A site for the new structure has been promised or given and part of the money has been contributed but more contributions are needed.

Atty - Gen. Will Wilson's recent Chamber of Commerce speech was quoted in which Wilson tited the need for decentralization of business, industry and population from metropolitan areas to smaller cities.

Support of Cameron's hospitals, churches, schools and businesses will enhance this city's attractiveness to new industry and people.

The hospital's non - paid Board of Trustees had the foresight to secure the grant for the new building, rather than let all funds go to the metropolitan hospitals, the source said.

Completion of the project would follow other recent advancements in Cameron that include the new water and sewer system, new housing projects, widening of SH 36, the new Methodist Fellowship Hall, sand blasting the courthouse, the door factory, plans for a new First Baptist Church and store front modernization.

CLEARING THE WAY — This group of about 40 boys worked Saturday afternoon to clear the new ball park of rocks. The boys cleared out a truck load of rocks from the park. The park will be harrowed and the boys will clear the field again. Bleachers were being erected Wednesday. Any donations can be sent to "Cameron Little League, Cameron, Texas. — Staffoto

TEXAS LAWMEN

Ranger Captain Bill McDonald

A Texas Ranger, tradition has it, must ride like a Mexican, trail like an Indian, shoot like a Tennesseean and fight like a devil. William Jesse McDonald was just such a man. He was the lone lawman who answered the call for a company of Rangers with, "You ain't got but one mob, have you?" Born in "Bloody Kemper" County, Mississippi, 1852, McDonald's first 33 years were restless, roving. But on the rolling plains of Hardeman county in 1885, he came into his own. As Deputy Sheriff he established a reputation for fearless law enforcement, expert marksmanship and lightning quick disarming of opponents. Soon he was a special Ranger, then a U. S. Deputy Marshal — and the McDonald legend was a-building. Governor Hogg made him Captain of Co. B, Frontier Battalion, in 1891. And it was Bill McDonald who was chosen to guard and go wolf hunting with President Teddy Roosevelt in 1905. Later he guarded Woodrow Wilson on a trip to Texas. The salty-talking Captain Bill delighted them both. With a good fighting Scots name, he had a fine face lined with sun, wind and character, mild blue eyes, soft voice — and a "suddenness" that made him irresistible to friend or enemy. Since 1918 Ranger Captain Bill McDonald has been at peace — in Quanah Cemetery.

Respected and honored, the Texas lawman today still safeguards our lives and liberty. And in this vigorous and freedom minded homeland, where "Beer Belongs," the United States Brewers Foundation works constantly, in conjunction with brewers, wholesalers and retailers, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions. Believing that strict law enforcement serves the best interest of Texans, the Foundation stresses close cooperation with the Armed Forces, law enforcement and governing officials.

MILAM COUNTY'S

Farm Scene

County Agents Notes

Soil Compaction Farm Hazard

By J. D. Moore, County Agent

Farmers are advised not to plow soils too wet in their eagerness to get crops started. Yields of many crops on heavy clay soils are reduced by 25 per cent before the crop is planted, due to soil compaction. Also, 17 per cent of the water that falls is lost as "run off" due to soil compaction preventing the water from entering the soil.

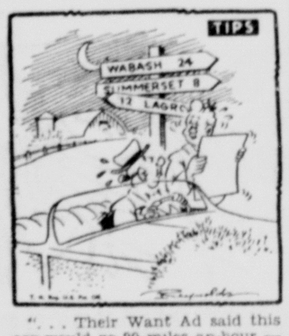
Most blackland soils are compared of fine clay particles. Due to this fineness and the nature of the clay to "stick" together, plowing too wet with heavy tractors pack the top four to eight inches of the soil causing what is known as a 'Hard - pan."

"Mother Nature" has done a good job of "puffing up" the soil as a result of "freezing" and thawing this winter. This is natures way of preparing the soil for the proper circulation of air and water as well as an ideal condition for roots from rapidly growing young plants to penetrate the soil.

For example, after the cottonseed germinates, the root system develops rapidly. The first to form is the tap root, with a few lateral branches. If the soil is in ideal physical condition for the proper circulation of air and water, the tap root of young cotton plant three weeks to a month old will go down some 28 inches into the soil. If the soil is plowed too wet with heavy tractors, soil compaction may occur.

WHAT DOES THIS HAVE TO DO WITH CROP YIELDS? By having the taproot as a means of going down to reach the moisture during the summer the cotton plant is a good "dry weather" plant. A common occurance is to find cotton plants with a side tracked taproot that started its downward growth, hit the hard pan and was not only turned to the side but was suffocated due to the inability to find air and water.

Plant development is no better than the root development of the plants. Crop yields are reduced in the same proportion as that of the root system due to the plant getting most of the necessary moisture and plant food by way of the root system.



". . . Their Want Ad said this car would go 80-miles-an-hour — according to the road map we've only gone two inches!"

Hints On Cow And Calf Feeding

COLLEGE STATION — It's been a rough winter on beef cattle. And the continued cold weather, advises Uel D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman, could cause losses of both cows and calves.

Shortages of adequate and quality roughages and protein supplement have caused excessive weight losses and cows in such condition generally have calving and after calving troubles, says Thompson. Calves may be born weak-even too weak to nurse. Too, the cow may not produce enough milk for the calf and it may be low in some of the essential nutrients. Thus, adds the specialist, calves become unthrifty and some may die.

Here are Thompson's suggestions for improving the situation. The cow should get a daily minimum of 2 pounds of 41 percent protein supplement because pasture grasses this year are of low quality due to last fall's early and hard freeze and the favorable weather which followed. The feeding of additional roughage of good quality may be necessary on some farms and ranches he adds. Cows in very pood physical condition are likely to have a vitamin A deficiency, Thompson says. This can be corrected by feeding a block of leafy green alfalfa hay or one - fourth pound of alfalfa pellets daily and could save the cow and calf. He advises such feeding until green grazing becomes available.

Get Ready For Those Baby Chicks

COLLEGE STATION — Before those baby chicks come the successful poultryman has several things to do. The performance of these chicks, when mature as broilers or layers, will depend on the care they receive during brooding.

The most important thing is to have the brooder house prepared, says Ed Kosarek, poultry supervisor, Texas A & M Poultry Science Department. Several steps should be followed carefully Kosarek explains them as follows:

Clean out all old litter and disinfect the house and equipment before putting down new litter. This is a good way to stop disease outbreaks before they occur.

Turn on the brooders a day or so in advance of the chicks' arrival to check for needed repairs and then adjust the hover temperature to 95 degrees. Thereafter cut the heat down 5 degrees each week until it reaches 70 degrees or until heat is no longer required. Also, set chick guards up about 3 feet from the brooder edge so chicks can spread out.

After the chicks come use paper plates or filler flats to provide one and one-half inches of feeding space per chick for the first few days. A high quality mash is recommended for debeaked chicks for the first few days. It is easy to eat and should be plentiful.

Provide plenty of fresh, clean wate, Kosarek emphasizes. In winter, warm water should be used. Two one-gallon waterers per 100 chicks is sufficient.

Keep the chicks warm but be sure there is enough fresh air in the house, Kosarek points out. And last but not least, a good disease preventative measure is to keep chicks at least 300 feet away from older birds.

Buckholts FHA Sponsors Mother, Daughter Fete

The Buckholts FHA Chapter sponsored its annual Mother - Daughter Banquet on March 11 at 7:30 p. m. in the Home Economics Cottage. Approximately 45 guests were present.

The decorations featured a St. Patrick's Day theme. The banquet tables were laid with white cloths and draped with green streamers. The souvenir programs had green covers and green shamrocks atop white marshmallows served as place cards.

The chapter president, LaVelle Fischer, served as the mistress of ceremonies and a piano prelude was presented by Nancy Zavrel.

FHA keys were presented to the Chapter Sweetheart, Marc Gersbach, and the Chapter Pin-Up, Carroll Gene Fuchs. Mrs. C. P. Vickery, chapter advisor, presented the president's Guard to LaVelle Fischer and the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Award to Linda Jones. She also presented the Chapter Homemaker Degree to Delia Jurca and Shirley Kudlacek; the Junior Homemaker Degree to Cathey Gersback, Glenda Weber, and Judy Wall.

Special guests attending were: Mrs. J. W. Perry, Mrs. Raymond Wall, Chapter Mother; Mrs. Andrew Gersback, Mrs. Harold Fuchs and C. P. Vickery.

69 Cases Of Rabies Listed In February

Wildlife rabies is running two to one ahead of rabies among domestic animals, the State Department of Health record for February shows.

In February, there were 69 cases of rabies diagnosed in all animals. Only 17 of the 69 total were among dogs and cats.

The rabies picture in Texas has recently been taking on a new look. The present trend indicates a decline in the number of rabies in domestic pets, but a rise in the number of wildlife rabid animals.

Infected skunks and foxes were more numerous than the total of rabid dogs confirmed by the State Health Department laboratory during 1959. Livestock rabies has shown an increase also, probably due to exposure to wildlife.

Public health veterinarians point out that, numerically, there isn't a high enough immune pet population in Texas to prevent the spillover of wildlife rabies into the dog and cat population.

Right now, three counties, Milam Washington and Falls, have emergency rabies control programs in effect.

W. C. Wallace Seeks District Judge's Post

In offering for the office of District Judge of Milam County, and in asking the people for their vote in the primary election on May 7 I would like to make the following statement:

I am a native of this county, born at Rockdale 49 years ago. My wife and I and our two children live in Cameron, where I have been actively engaged as a lawyer for the past twenty - five years. I went to the public schools in Cameron, attended Rice Institute, where I made the honor roll, and graduated from Harvard University in 1932. After being admitted to the Texas Bar in 1935, I commenced the practice of law in partnership with my father, W. A. Wallace, continuing in this association until his death in 1946. In World War II, I served five years in the Army, entering as a private and advancing to the rank of captain. Three years of this were spent in the Pacific, where I received two battle stars. I was recalled to active duty in 1950 during the Korean war, and served 18 months. Since than I have been in the general practice of law here in Cameron.

The office of District Judge is one of fundamental importance in the frame - work of our system of justice, having as it does the basic responsibility for the administration of our laws, both civil and criminal. If elected, it is my purpose to devote my entire time to the discharge of the duties entrusted to me, and to administ the affairs of my office fairly and impartially. Think Over All Phases Of Question Before Going Steady

by Dan Halligan

Dear Dan: I'm 17 and a high school senior. A boy I like very much and who graduated last year wants me to go steady. He's been asking me for about three months but I've always had excuses. My mother says I'll be making a big mistake to break away from all the other boys I know. I date several boys at the present time but the idea of going steady, which I've never done, sort of fascinates me. Besides, most of my girl friends have steadies. Do you think a high school senior, expecially me, should date steady? Wondering.

Dear Wondering: While I'm opposed to younger - age teen - agers dating steady, there's nothing wrong with high school seniors doing it. At their age, they should be capable of making the right decision. However, your mother has a sound argument. When a girl begins dating one boy exculsively, she does take herself out of date circulation. Not only that, but she may lose some of her girl friends. You'll find you'll be unavailable for a lot of enjoyment you now take for granted.

Don't go steady with this boy because the idea appeals to you or because your girl friends have steadies. Another problem you have to consider is your immediate future. What if the boy goes into military service or away at college? What then. It's pretty tough going steady through the U. S. mail. Think over all phases of the question before you take that big and important step.

Dear Dan: How can I break my boy friend of the very rude habit of sitting out in his car and blowing the horn for me when we have a date? It's getting so bad lately, he doesn't even get out of the car when he brings me home at night. Judy T.

Dear Judy: Quit running out to the car when you hear the horn and that will solve Problem No. 1. Concerning Problem No. 2, your boy friend is either lazy, impolite or you've lost your charm. Which is it?

Dear Dan: My father and I are always arguing about the length of my hair. He wants me to get it cut short and says I look like a gangster because I wear it fairly long. I think a high school boy's hair is his own property, don't you? Willie.

Dear Willie: You're right, your hair is your own property but if it's as long as I think it might be, I agree with your father that you should make a trip to the barber shop. You don't necessarily have to get your hair cut right down to the roots but why not try and meet your father halfway? Believe it or not, but most girls think boys look much neater with short hair than with hair that goes on and on in greasy waves.

Dear Dan: I'm in our local National Guard company and because I don't intend to start college until next year, want to take my six months of active Army duty now.

Dear Stan: It's going to have to be your decision to make but I do know if I were in your place, I'd want to do the same thing you're thinking of doing. Your girl isn't being fair to you and should have realized a long time ago your National Guard duties would someday interfere with your social life. Ask her to be more understanding and if she can't she may not be the girl for you.

My girl gets mad whenever we talk about this because she says she'll have nothing to do while I'm away. I realize that but I'm going to have to put in that time sooner or later and would rather get it over with now. But if I go away, I may lose my girl. What do you think I should do? Stan.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hearne and children from Sherman spent Sunday with his mother Mrs. M. A. Hearne and Mrs. Hearne accompanied them home for a weeks visit.

'Go Karts' Come To Cameron View

By Robert Mann

It's taken two and a half years for the "go kart" boom to hit Cameron, but it appears they may be well on their way now.

The newest thing in fun and excitement with speed on a small scale, it's estimated that there are 20,000 of the carts in use and privately owned across the United States.

Last week a local automobile agency announced local dealership for the carts. So far the agency reports one machine sold, a six and half horsepower job.

Tracks are going up all over the county; two located near Cameron, one in Belton and another in Thorndale, where spectators and competition crowds grow bigger every week.

Don't get the idea that these "little babies" are just for the younger set. Most competitive driving is done by aduits. A glance at a cart and a grown man may be a little hesitant to try his luck behind the wheel.

They seldom weigh over a hundred pounds and don't extend over six feet in length. However six - foot sixers have been seen zooming around a track at 50 miles an hour and having the driving thrill of a lifetime.

A little noisy, the biggest problem is finding a place to drive one when a track is not available. Cameron has high hopes of introducing their own track in the near future if the carts catch on as expected.

The originator's concept of the machine went something like this: To build the smallest possible automobile that would carry an adult of average size. I had to be fast enough to be exciting, cheap enough to be inviting, strong for safety, and light for convenience.

The motors range from 5.8 cubic inches and 2½ housepower to 16.5 cubic inches and 24 horses. It's powered by a single cylinder motor and has no body or transmission; it uses a centrical automatic clutch.

The Karts are usually sold in a do - it - yourself kit or come already assembled at a small extra charge and range from about 130 dollars to pretty close to 500 dollars. Most carts' top speed is about 30 or 40 miles an hour, though some of the larger twin engine jobs, may flirt with 65 mph.

They are safe and practically impossible to turn over. The steering wheel set for about one - third turn from lock to lock. If a person is fairly advanced in mechcanics he may trust constructing his own, often two strike motorcycle engines are used for this.

Expert race car drivers who have reformed to carts seem to think they are more fun than a barrel of monkeys and as safe as playing golf on the weekend.

Fingers are crossed and hopes high as Saturday draws nearer as does the 25th annual Track Meet held here. The regular procedure will be repreated with preliminaries beginning at 10:15 and finals at 7 p. m.

Out of the 20 schools to be present, Jim Speer seems to think Taylor, Belton and Georgetown will come the most fully equipped.

There are doubts as to what the weather will do in adding to the competition. Last year the meet took place in cold, rainy and windy weather. The relays haven't seen good weather in three years.

VOS

Baseball season, a little slow getting started since the signing up of players is now rolling along with Coach Max Treadwell working the squad hard after school hours, whenever the weather permits.

VOS

Interscholastic League workouts began the past week at Yoe High School. Interest was high as usual with the majority of the school's students entering in a literary or athletic event.

Softball, tennis, golf, volleyball, and track will be offered the girls as well as the boys with exception of track.

Malone, Lierman Score In Cotton Bowl Relays

Cameron faired well in the Cotton Bowl Relays against some of the strongest competition in Texas High Schools. The relays were held Saturday in Taylor under a cloudy sky.

The Yoemen totaled 3¼ points in the 40 school meet, which was swept by Taylor. Georgetown took second place.

Steve Malone and Edward Lierman accounted for The Yoemen's points. Malone finished fourth in the broad jump with a leap of 20 feet and was second, in a tie with 5 other contestants in the high jumping event with a leap of 5 feet nine inches.

Lierman, a junior speedster and last years district 100 yard dash champion ran a 10.5 in the 100 and ranked 4th in finals.

The Yoemen qualified for the finals in every event they entered. The prelimanaries were held in the morning and the finals at night.

Malone ran a 15.7 in High Hurdles in preliminaries. Dwayne Juergens qualified for the finals with a 54.6, 440 yard dash. The 440 yard relay team ran a 46.5, Joe Harbour, 880 man qualified with a 2.16.6, and Jimmy Weathers, newest man on the squad ran a 5.15.5 mile.

Cameron Relays Scheduled For March 19 at YHS

The Cameron Relays are to be held at Yoe High Athletic Field this coming Saturday. The preliminaries will begin at 10:15 a.m. and the finals are scheduled to start at 7 p. m.

Track coach Jim Speer, has received word from Conley that they will be present at the meet bringing the total number of expected schools to 20.

The meet will be Cameron's second of the year, last Saturday they competited against 40 schools at the Cotton Bowl Relays in Taylor. The Yoe wrapped up 3¼ points.

Speer believed that the roughest opposition will be with Belton, Taylor and Georgetwon. Taylor was the Cotton Bowl winner and Georgetown runnerup.

Two outstadning performers will be Belton's Richard Inman, a state contender for the shot put last year and Thorndale's Don Evans, believed to be capable of setting a new record in the discus throw.

Interscholastic League rules will prevail throughout the meet. All contestants must be ready to run at the specified time and be present five minutes before the drawing for lanes.

It was noted that the school cafeteria will be open from 11 to 1 for lunch and 4:30 to 6 p. m. for the evening meal. All meals are $1.

In case of a conflict between the tract and filed events the meet will have preference. The 5-3-2-1 point system will be used. This meet is for white students only and prices are 25 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

Gold medals will be awarded the first place winners, silver medals to second place winners, bronze medals to third place winners. A team trophy will be awarded to the meet winner and the mile relay champion. An individual trophy will be given to high point man.

Fish Regulations Changed Recently At Alcoa Lake

Regulations governing size and catch limits on bass at Alcoa Lake were changed this week following recommendations made by the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

Under the new rules the bass limit will be moved upward from five to 15, and there will be no limit on size, R. R. Sugg, Alcoa's Rockdale Works manager, announced.

A sign listing regulations near the Lake's concession house will bear the notation: "All fish caught should be kept."

At the same time, a committee which regularly reviews policy on the lake said tha maximum limit on horsepower of outboard motors used there would be raised.

The bass limited from 12 to 15 was made as the result of a recent study by John Tilton, regional aquatic biologist for the Game and Fish Commission. In his report, Tilton said an increasing number of young bass is being produced and recommended the change in order to prevet overcrowding.

NATION . . .

Fidel's Folly

Castro's regime has made its final move to "nationalize" the economy of Cuba for distribution of resources to the "people".

American interests are beginning to close plants such as sugar mills before the final expropriation of American and Cuban investment is completed by the Castro government.

Castro acts more and more like the puppet of Soviet Russia, not just by reducing private ownership to a memory, but by besmirching the airwaves with a "hate America" campaign.

What began as an idealistic purge of Baptista's dictatorship has become a dictatorship of a Communist-tinged few. In the doing, they have duped equalitarian-minded Cubans into overthrowing a great deal of their own rights.

When asked a year ago when free election would be held, Castro promised them in one year. No election of government officials has occurred.

It seems that Cuba is becoming another Russia with a politboro of revolutionaries aiming to alienate completely Cuba and the U. S.

What happens to the Cuban native who helped bring Castro to power if that dynamic dreamer jumbles their economy and future? Will a sugar compact with Russia aid Cuban interests or those of the Western Hemisphere?

A report recently quoted a Cuban dock workers union in saying they believed the munitions-laden ship that exploded in Havana actually was an accident and not sabotoged as Castro's government so vehemently said.

Why indeed does Castro shout derision at America on Havana TV stations? Why does he continue to wear the symbolic beard and fatigue cap?

This has happened in Cuba. Disregarding the nationalization of foreign investment in Cuba, which happens in many nations seeking internal autonomy, the Cuban situation smacks of totalitarian Communism.

We will probably see the same kind of "free" elections Stalin used to hold in Russia. One candidate was nominated for each post and voting was recommended at the will of the Red Army.

Nobody Asked Me, But . . .

What purports to be success these days is attracting interest in closer evaluation of the meaning of the word.

In considering everyone's drive for a higher standard of living, psychiatrists find that the end result of financial success often is an insecure void.

This is not universally true. But common sense would tell us that success in terms of financial status or a career "name" is a by-product of a highly productive effort in the field of one's choice.

The means often get confused with the goal and we never reach our goal because the means become so lucrative.

In politics, the idealist seeks equal rights in the name of some new order, but gets enmeshed in the mechanics of power to achieve the goal. And the end result is power, rather than improvement of the human species. That is a Fidel Castro.

Our chief problem is controlling the material influences while achieving the goal. Reality tarnishes our quest for a truth, which most of us call happiness; and status takes precedence over our goals.

Vague terms these, yet each of us can place the appropriate labels on them and find a clearer picture of our own human condition.

Crux of the problem is that proper labeling usually comes long overdue, upending careers and symbols after a productive change is impossible.

We read of leaders in religion, politics, commerce, letters or any field. And each is recognized first for his humanity, his earnest contribution to human dignity. His goal is a contribution, not always in the popular martyr-like concept, but a sincere hallmark in the annals of history.

The measure of success, then, in the 1960's is queasy in the test of real values, past and future. And uncomfortably enough, it will not even stand the analysis of "now."

Politicians Upset Without Sunshine

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — Texas politics have been finding it hard to make hay with no sun shining.

A number of statewide candidates are stumping the state, and legislative contenders are getting invitations to speak at rallies and before special groups.

Bad weather and the unaccustomed earliness of this year's election schedule have made it harder for most to get campaigns rolling.

Legislative candidates report they are most often quizzed on whether they favor (1) a teacher pay raise and (2) a general sales tax. "Yes" to the first and "no" to the second are generally regarded as safest answers. But many old hands have misgivings, feeling that the two commitments together may put them in a hard situation come the next session.

AMENDMENT LINE—UP

In the hoopla of a presidential campaign year, amendments to the Texas constitution probably will get only secondary attention, though they are of vital importance to all Texans.

Four are to be voted on by the people at the general election Nov. 8. Their order on the ballot, as determined by a drawing conducted by Secreatary of State Zollie Steakley, will be:

1. An amendment authorizing the Legislature to create a hospital district in Lamar and Hidalgo Counties and part of Comanche County.

2. An amendment authorizing the Veterans Land Board to issue bonds at 3½ percent intrest instead of the present 3 per cent maximum.

3. An amendment giving members of the Legislature annual salaries of $4,800 a year and $12 per day allowance for a 120 - day session. Sessions could go no longer than 140 days.

4. An amendment authorizing the Legislature to license and regulate lenders and fix maximum rates of interest.

SCHOOL COSTS JUMP

A baby boom in the fifties means soaring school bills in the sixties, as indicated by the State Board of Education's 1960 - 61 estimate.

Board reported that cost of Texas public school program for next year will be $365,000,000. This is an increase of some $15,000,000 over the previous year.

Reasons for the rise is more children -- requiring more teachers, more books, more desks, etc. Total enrollment for next year is expected to be 2,254,574, an increase of more than a half million since the 1954 - 55 year.

Counties will have to pay $73,080,000, or 20 per cent of the $365,000,000 total cost.

"SLEEPY VILLAGES" GO BIG TIME

Texas Municipal League reported on towns that had grown 150 per cent or more -- some as much as 1,617 per cent.

Twelve of the 21 big growers are towns near to one of Texas' three largest cities -- Dallas Houston and Fort Worth. Topping the list with runaway expansion were three Dallas County towns -- Irving, up 1,617 per cent; Mesquite, up 1,323 per cent and Farmers Branch, up 1,211 per cent.

Industrialization was the key to the spectacular growth of most of the 21. In a number of cases, the coming of a single large plant started the boom rooling.

Johnson, Poage Discuss Education

Senate . . .

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson said Sunday recent announcement by the Russians of an "international university" in Moscow under lined a great and growing weakness of the Soviets.

In a radio broadcast recorded for home - state constituents in Texas, Johnson said the Russian program called for students to come to Moscow for study --but they would work in an institution separate from the Russian students.

He said this was in sharp contrast to a proposal Johnson spearheaded last year, calling for creation of an international center in Hawaii where students and scholars from both East and West would join.

"No one knows what was behind this latest example of Russian thinking," Johnson said. "But I suspect the Communist leaders are fearful of what Russian students might learn if they were exposed too long to the thinking of the outside world."

The greatest Russian fear, he said, is fear of the truth.

This is their great weakness. In that weakness is our great strength," he said.

House . . .

By Cong. Bob Poage

The "extended educational discussion" of Civil Rights has been transferred from the Senate to the House, but it is evident that under our rules of strictly limited debate there can be nothing comparable to the Senate filibuster. On the contrary, the bill was brought before the House on yesterday. A rule was adopted allowing fifteen hours of general debate. I voted against it because, as I have pointed out before, I feel that the best way to protect everybody's civil rights is to protect out time-honored judicial procedure which this bill sets aside.

The debate will continue through tomorrow and most of Monday. On Tuesday, and possibly Wednesday, of next week, amendments to the bill will be considered. Although I expect to vote against it, it is a foregone conclusion that the bill will pass. We can only hope that the House may adopt a more reasonable bill than the one now pending in the Senate, and that the Senate may then accept the House bill.

Our Agriculture Committee continues daily hearings on my general farm bill and on various wheat bills. The Farm Bureau proposes that we take off all restrictions on the production of wheat and let the price sink to the level of corn. I fear that this would result in a terrible flood of wheat which would not only destroy wheat growers but which would demoralize all livestock and livestock feed prices as well. All of the other national farm organizations propose to establish effective controls on the amount of wheat which can be sold for food and keep the prices high enough that it will pay the producer a reasonable return. I cannot believe that the taxpayers should be expected to support unlimited production. The bill I introduced would allow farmers themselves, through their elected committees, to work out the program they wanted -- so long as it is one which the Secretary of Agriculture says will balance supply and demand, and will not build up any new surplus nor cost more than 5 per cent of the value of the crop.

The
LITTLE RIVER Philosopher

THIS WEEK:

Dear editar:

When I run out of something to do out here on this Johnson grass farm, and I can do it any time I don't feel like working, I like to amuse myself by reviewing the latest situations on the farm problem.

Last night I got an entirely new slant on the farm problem and its importance. According to an article I read in a newspaper which must have fallen out of an airplane, I don't know how else it could have gotten wedged between the forks of a tree ten feet above the ground, that farmers' incomes have dropped twenty per cent in the last two years while their expenses have gone up five per cent.

"The farmers are going bankrupt," the governor of Nebraska said on reading these figures.

Well, lots of farmers have been heading toward bankruptcy for years, but as long as they don't actually get there, or they get there but nobody knows it, they seem to keep plugging away.

But what interested me in this report was the reaction of another group of leaders to it.

"Our concern goes deeper than concern for farmers, for merely maintiaining the family - size farm" they said. "Many small towns in this nation are dependent on the farmers. If the farmers go broke, what'll happen to these towns?"

But they needn't have stopped there. Look at it this way. Not only are many small towns dependent on the farmers, but many big towns are sort of dependent on small towns, and big cities are depentent on little cities, and Washington is dependent on all of them. And come to think of it, a lot of other nations are depending on Washington.

So, if I lose money out here on this farm, it's not concern for myself that bothers me. It's an international worry.

Up to now, I figured whether I made any money or not was more or less my worry, plus my banker's, but viewed in this newer light, it's clear that the entire world is depending on me to make a profit, and consequently the farmer's plight is everybody's plight.

Barbecue Supper

Buckholts PTA will sponsor a Beef and chicken Bar - be - que supper on Friday night March 18 serving will begin at 5:30 p. m.

New Reasons Why Farmers Should Make A Profit

I had no idea so much responsibility rested on me, and I will appreciate it if you'll see that Congress helps me make a profit this year. I don't ask this for myself. I'm looking at it internationally.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

(Note: The American statesman, W. J. Bryan, was born 100 years ago -- on March 19, 1860)

In the fall of 1914 when I was a high school student, William Jennings Bryan, the greatest orator in America, was going to speak in our city, so I went to hear him. So did several thousand others. The scene was Red Elm baseball park in Memphis. Bryan was delayed because his train was behind schedule and so the audience was entertained by speakers until he could arrive.

The governor of Mississippi apologized for his hoarseness by saying, "I have feathers in my throat" and a disrespectful listener called out, "You mean on your legs, don't you?" and someone yelled, "Hurray for Bilbo!" (Bilbo was a politician foe of the governor.) Then the governor of Louisiana spoke. All I remember about him was that he wore a black coat which was so tight — he had it buttoned up) -- that I was afraid, as he went through violent gestures, that the buttons would pop off, endangering bystanders.

But Governor Hays of Arkansas is still a vivid memory. Tennessee at that time had a Republican governor because of division in the Democratic party. The governor of Arkansas was tall and his head was as devoid of hair as a china nest - egg. In shrill tones, he told the intensely partisan crowd: "I am informed that some of the Democrats in Tennessee have actually helped to elect a Republican governor. They say he is a g-o-o-d man. My friends, I would as soon go down into the murky and sulphurous depths of hell in quest of angles or up to the golden gleaming gates of heaven in search of devils as into the Republican party looking for honest men!" The air was rent with cheers and there were cries of "Hooray for Hays! Hays for Presi-dent!"

The arrival of Brayn brought great applause. We saw a man of portly build, close to six feet in height, wearing a dark suit, the coat long, and a black stringtie. His face was full; his eyes were dark and their glance was penetrating; his nose was almost like the beak of a hawk; his mouth large; his jaw strong. He had a warm smile, almost one of benevolence. All in all, he was a handsome and impressive man. At that time, he was secretary of state to President Wilson's cabinet, and World War I had broken out not long before but the United States had not become involved. As he sat there, waiting to be introduced, he was handed a telegram. In most families, at that time, a telegram meant a death or, at least serious illness so the receipt of that yellow - hued message clinched my beliefe that he was truly a great man.

When he arose after the introduction, he was greeted with tremendous cheers. Here was the Great Commoner, the Peerless Leader whom most of the audience three times had supported for president. He stood there, his noble face beaming. Then he began to speak; and what a voice he had! The meeting was in the open air and the platform was about where the pitcher's mound was. This was, of course, before the day of public address systems, and confronting him was an audience that filled the large grand-

Outdoors In Texas . . .

Best Time To Go Fishing

By Vern Sanford

When is the best time to go fishing?

Best answer to that question is "Go anytime you can!"

However, many anglers get scientific about this fishing business. They go by the "solunar table," for example.

As the name implies, the solunar table takes into consideration the relative positions of the sun and moon at the various hours of the day, and thereby "selects" the best time of day for fishing.

Most outdoorsmen will agree that positions of the sun and moon do have some effect on the behavior of wildlife. But that's about as much as they will agree on.

Some say that the waning moon is better for hunting -- as well as fishing. Others declare the opposite is true.

However, anyone who has spent time in the open knows that animals, birds and fish are promoted at certain periods of the day or night to move around and seek food, exercise or amusement.

A "scientific" fisherman watches for such activity. When he sees an old cow get up from her nap under a shady tree and start walking around; or when a flight of birds suddenly comes wheeling by; or when the clear air is all at once filled with insects -- he intensifies his fishing activity -- for he knows the fish are active too.

If you'd like to experiment, take the solunar table with you next time you go fishing, and observe whether, at the specified time, hear dogs barking, or see sheep arise and munch grass, or note mullet jumping.

When the outdoors creatures become active, at one of the solunar periods, you ought to be in business if you are in good fishing water and using the right method.

There's bound to be something to it, or so many newspapers wouldn't be publishing solunar tables.

Actually, the solunar table is one of many guides to good fishing. You don't have to rely on it alone.

For example, some of the tackle manufacturers will supply you with a calendar which shows the days of the month when fishing is likely to be at its best. These calendars also are based on the moon's phases.

The solunar table and the fisherman's calendar are two indicators. But there are more.

One is the "rumor gage." That's when you inquire of others as to whether or not the fish are biting.

Rumors are worthwhile if reliable and timely. Last week's report of course, is of dubious value, because conditions may have changed.

Some fishing camps and tackle shop operators will tell you the fishing is fine when it isn't. They want to sell you equipment, service and accommodations. Fortunately, most of these businessmen will give you factual information If they don't, they'll eventually be found out and their business will suffer.

The rumor gage is good only if you can evaluate the rumor accurately.

If you are at the lake and one of your good buddies comes in with his limit of fish and he tells you exactly where and how he caught them - go to that spot as fast as possible. Your chances are pretty good unless conditions have changed materially in the meantime.

What about barometric pressure? General concensus is that the barometer should be high or rising. Here's another place where you can get as technical as you like.

For example, let's assume that our fish are ten feet deep and the barometer is very low at 29.50. This means that the pressure on the fish is about 18.80 pounds per squard inch. All of a sudden (which never happens) the barometer reading jumps up to a very high 30.50. If the fish remain at ten feet, the pressure on them will increase half a pound per square inch. But if they rise to nine feet the pressure will remain the same, because the fish compensate for the increased air pressure by reducing the water pressure, the latter being lower at higher water levels.See?

Actually a steady high or rising barometer simply means that we can expect fair weather for awhile. If there is a weather reporter on your local radio or television station, check him for good indications about what weather to expect for the next couple of days.

A bright sky is considered best for fishing generally. One that is beginning to be overcast ranks next. But there are so many variants here that it would take a week to cover all of them.

In case of doubt, settle for a clear bright day. You've got at least half of the factors in your favor. Besides, it's more pleasant for you.

Air temperature should be mild for an optimum. But the water temperature is more important because that's where the fish are. They go where it's neither too hot nor too cold.

A black bass likes the same temperature you do: 68 to 70 degrees suits him just fine. If you want to be precise, test the temperature at various levels by lowering a thermometer into the water. It could very well pay you for the trouble.

It's also said to be advantageous if the surface of the water is rippled, because under these circumstances you can better approach the fish without his seeing you.

Calm water is okay if you use care in moving up to your fishing spot, and in presenting your lure.

Choppy water may be favorable, but avoid whitecaps.

The ancients said that a south or west wind was best for fishing; east not so good; and north lousy. Maybe so. Calm weather is about right. A light breeze won't hurt anything, a strong wind is not so good, and who wants to go fishing in a storm?

Number Of Wild Birds Starving

AUSTIN — Thousands of game and song birds are starving in Texas because of the lingering icy weather that has blanketed the State. "Game wardens have reported seeing hundreds of dead or dying robbins, too weak to search any longer for insects or seeds, reports the assistant director of and Fish Commission, J. B. Phillips.

Few plants produce berries this time of the year. Insects are in hibernation or have been killed out by the freezing cold spells typical in the State the past few months. Many birds have turned to eating things they normally pass up. Others rob protected gardens in desperation.

"These birds need food, and they need it badly," said the assistant director. "Some of them are so weak from starvation that they can't escape even to the greener pastures that lie farther south. They're simply doomed without the help of man."

Texans could help by tossing our a few bread crumbs or sprinkling a handful or two of grain outdoors each day. Most people throw enough scraps into the garbage each day to feed dozens of small undernourished song birds. "Set these scraps aside for our feathered friends," suggests the assistant director. "This would be a wonderful project for the young people."
